How to Answer

In your answer, you should demonstrate an understanding of the laws and regulations related to alcohol service. You should be able to identify signs of intoxication and know when to refuse service. It is also important to mention any training you've had in responsible alcohol service.

Sample Answer

I believe that serving alcohol responsibly is one of the most important parts of a bartender's job. I'm familiar with the signs of intoxication, such as slurred speech, difficulty standing, and aggressive behavior, and I'm not afraid to refuse service when necessary. I've also completed a responsible beverage service training program, which has given me even more skills and knowledge in this area.

How do you handle stress during peak hours at the bar?

How to Answer

The candidate should emphasize their ability to remain calm and efficient under pressure. They can talk about their organizational skills, multitasking abilities, and how they prioritize tasks. They may also discuss their mental strategies for staying focused, such as taking deep breaths or reminding themselves that the rush will pass. If they have specific examples from their past experience, that would be a plus.

Sample Answer

During peak hours, I first make sure to stay organized. I keep my workspace clean and ensure all the necessary items are within reach. I prioritize orders based on their complexity and the time they were placed. I also understand the importance of teamwork, so I communicate effectively with my colleagues to ensure a smooth service. For instance, if I see a colleague struggling, I try to assist them without compromising my own tasks. Mentally, I stay focused by reminding myself that the rush is temporary and that every order completed is one step closer to a less busy bar.

Can you describe your process for creating a new cocktail?

How to Answer

The interviewer wants to understand your creativity, knowledge about mixology, and your ability to balance flavors. Start by explaining how you consider the target audience, occasion, and seasonal ingredients. Then, describe how you experiment with different mixtures and ratios, and how you ensure the cocktail's taste is balanced. Lastly, discuss how you present the cocktail to make it visually appealing.

Sample Answer

Firstly, I consider the audience and occasion for the new cocktail – whether it's a summer party or a formal event. I try to choose ingredients that are in season or suit the event's theme. I start by choosing a base spirit, then add a secondary spirit or liqueur, and finally a mixer. I always consider the balance between sweet, sour, and bitter flavors. After creating a basic recipe, I experiment with it – adding a bit more of this, a little less of that – until I'm satisfied with the taste. Finally, I think about the presentation, including the glassware, garnishes, and any special serving instructions to make the cocktail look as good as it tastes.

Can you describe a time when you had to adapt a cocktail to suit a customer's particular taste or dietary restriction?

How to Answer

The best way to answer this question is by sharing a specific experience where you adjusted a cocktail based on the customer's preferences or dietary needs. Explain the situation, the actions you took to accommodate the customer, and the outcome of your actions.

Sample Answer

Yes, I remember a regular customer who was diabetic and wanted to enjoy cocktails without any added sugars. I started by researching and testing various natural sweeteners that wouldn't spike his blood sugar levels. After a few trials, I came up with a cocktail using stevia as a sweetener and fresh fruits to enhance the flavor. The customer was very appreciative and it became a popular choice among other health-conscious patrons.

What steps do you take to ensure excellent customer service during busy hours?

How to Answer

You should highlight your multitasking skills and provide examples of how you've managed to maintain high-quality service during peak hours in the past. Discuss your ability to remain calm under pressure and the strategies you use to ensure every customer feels valued despite the rush. Things like efficient order taking, prompt drink preparation, and effective communication with customers and team members are important aspects to mention.

Sample Answer

During busy hours, I prioritize efficient service and clear communication. I take orders quickly and accurately, and I make sure to let customers know if their drinks might take a bit longer due to the rush. I also work closely with other bar staff to ensure we're all pulling in the same direction. For instance, if the bar is particularly crowded, we might implement a system where one person takes orders while another focuses solely on making drinks. This way, we can serve customers more quickly without sacrificing the quality of our service or our cocktails.

What methods do you use to remember regular customers and their drink preferences?

How to Answer

You can start by explaining the importance of remembering regular customers and their preferences as it contributes to customer satisfaction and loyalty. Then, you can discuss any strategies or systems you use to remember these details, such as mental associations, notepads, POS system notes, etc. You can also share an example of when you successfully remembered a customer's preference and how this enhanced their experience.

Sample Answer

I believe that remembering regular customers and their preferences is a crucial part of providing excellent service. To do this, I use a combination of strategies. I make mental associations based on the customer's appearance, name, and their usual order. On top of that, I utilize the note feature in our POS system to keep a record of regular customers and their favorite drinks. This system has proven to be effective. For instance, I remembered a regular customer who always orders a dry martini with a twist. One day, he brought his friends to the bar, and I remembered his usual order. He was delighted and appreciated the personalized service, which also impressed his friends.

Can you tell us about your knowledge of different types of alcohol and their appropriate combinations in various cocktails?

How to Answer

The interviewer wants to assess your knowledge and expertise in mixing drinks and creating cocktails. You should demonstrate your familiarity with various types of alcohol, including spirits, liqueurs, beers, and wines, and how they can be combined in different proportions to create popular cocktails. Also mention any unique or creative combinations you've discovered or invented yourself. If possible, provide examples of situations where your knowledge was put to the test, like a busy night or a special event.

Sample Answer

I have a wide knowledge of different types of alcohol ranging from spirits like vodka, gin, rum, and tequila to liqueurs, wines, and beers. For instance, I know that a traditional margarita cocktail requires tequila, triple sec, and lime juice, whereas a mojito needs rum, sugar, lime juice, soda water, and mint. Over the years, I have also created some of my own cocktail recipes. One of my popular creations is a twist on the classic Old Fashioned, where I use honey bourbon, a dash of orange bitters, and a hint of maple syrup. This combination adds a unique sweetness that my customers really enjoy. During a cocktail competition at my previous job, I used this recipe and it was a big hit.
