Promotions to corporal, sergeant, lieutenant, and captain usually are made according to a candidate's position on a promotion list, as determined by scores on a written examination and on-the-job performance.
Popular Companies	New York City Police Department, Los Angeles Police Department, Chicago Police Department

Police Interview Questions

Describe a situation where you had to make a decision under pressure. How did you handle it?

How to Answer:

In your answer, detail the situation you found yourself in and make sure to emphasize the pressure you were under. Discuss the options you considered and explain why you opted for the decision you made. It's also important to discuss the outcome of the situation and what you learned from it.

Example:

While working as a security guard at a shopping mall, I once encountered a situation where a child had gone missing. The parents were frantic and the pressure was high to locate the child quickly. I decided to use the mall's security cameras and enlisted the help of my colleagues to search the mall. We managed to locate the child within 15 minutes. This situation taught me the importance of staying calm under pressure and quickly making decisions.

How would you handle a situation where a fellow officer is involved in unethical behavior?

How to Answer:

The interviewer wants to see your integrity and commitment to upholding the law. Be truthful and considerate in your answer. Explain your approach to confront the situation, ensuring you would follow the correct protocol and procedure. You should also show that you understand the importance of maintaining a high ethical standard within the police force.

Example:

If I were to witness a fellow officer engaging in unethical behavior, I would not hesitate to report it to my superior. It's very important to maintain integrity within the police department and I believe it's my duty to uphold this standard. If the situation allows, I would confront the officer in question and ask about the behavior I observed. However, I understand the importance of following official procedures and would make sure to use the appropriate channels to report such behavior.

Can you tell us about a time when you had to deal with a particularly difficult individual? How did you handle the situation?

How to Answer:

The interviewer is looking for evidence of your problem-solving skills, communication abilities and patience. The best approach to answering this question is to provide a specific example and explain what the situation was, what actions you took, and what the result was. Remember to focus on the steps you took to de-escalate the situation and not on the negative aspects of the person's behavior.

Example:

In my previous job as a security officer, I dealt with a regular visitor who was often aggressive and disruptive. One day, he was particularly upset and was causing a disturbance in the lobby. I approached him calmly and respectfully, acknowledging his frustration and explaining the need to maintain a peaceful environment. I listened to his concerns and promised to pass them on to management. He calmed down and agreed to leave peacefully. This situation taught me the importance of patience, empathy, and effective communication in dealing with difficult individuals.

---

What steps would you take to de-escalate a tense situation?

How to Answer:

The key to answering this question effectively is to demonstrate a clear understanding of effective de-escalation techniques. Show that you're able to remain calm and composed, communicate effectively, and make sound decisions to ensure the safety of everyone involved. It's also important to mention that you would follow all department protocols and procedures.

Example:

In a tense situation, my first step would be to remain calm and composed – this can help to influence the behavior of others. I would then attempt to establish effective communication with the individual, using a calm and reassuring tone of voice. By asking open-ended questions, I would seek to understand their concerns and needs. Also, I would keep a safe distance and give the person some space, as this can help to reduce their anxiety. Above all, I would adhere strictly to the department's de-escalation procedures and protocols.

How would you build trust within the community you're serving?

How to Answer:

The best way to answer this question would be to provide examples of how you've built trust in past roles or how you would approach it in this role. Discussing the importance of open communication, empathy, integrity, visibility, and community involvement could be beneficial.

Example:

I believe building trust within the community involves consistent interaction and open communication. I would make myself visible and accessible to the public, attending community meetings and events to better understand their concerns. I'd also ensure to act with integrity in all situations. In my previous role, I initiated a 'coffee with a cop' program, where officers and community members could informally meet and discuss issues. It was very successful in building trust and bridging the gap between the police and the community.

What steps would you take to ensure your personal safety and the safety of others while on duty?

How to Answer:

When answering this question, it is important to demonstrate that you understand the risks associated with the job and have a plan to mitigate them. This can include following department protocols, wearing appropriate protective gear, and maintaining situational awareness. You should also mention the importance of communication and teamwork in ensuring everyone's safety.

Example:

Safety is my top priority as a police officer. To ensure my safety and the safety of others, I would first make sure that I am always wearing the appropriate protective gear. I would also follow all department protocols and procedures, as they are designed to minimize risk. I believe in the importance of maintaining situational awareness, which involves constantly scanning the environment for potential threats. Additionally, I would ensure clear and constant communication with my team, as teamwork and coordination are key in ensuring everyone's safety. Lastly, I would make sure to undergo regular training to keep my skills up to date and to learn new safety techniques.

Can you describe a situation where you had to take a leadership role? What was the outcome?

How to Answer:

The best way to answer this question is by using the STAR method (Situation, Task, Action, Result). Begin by describing the situation where you had to take a leadership role. Then, explain your task, your specific actions, and the result of the situation.

Example:

During my time in the police academy, our class was assigned a group project. Unfortunately, our group was having difficulty organizing and getting started. Recognizing this, I stepped up to coordinate our efforts. I divided the project into tasks and assigned them based on each member's strengths. I also set up regular meetings to track our progress and make adjustments as needed. As a result, we completed the project on time and received high marks for our teamwork and organization.

What is your understanding of the 'use of force' policy in policing, and how does it guide your actions in high-stress situations?

How to Answer:

In your answer, demonstrate your understanding of the 'use of force' policy and its importance in maintaining law and order. Highlight how it influences your decision-making process, especially in stressful situations. Explain how you balance the need to protect public safety with respect for individual rights. You can also include any training you have had that helps you apply the policy effectively.

Example:

The 'use of force' policy is integral in policing. It guides officers on the appropriate level of force to use, depending on the situation at hand. The primary goal is always to maintain public safety, but it's equally important to ensure that the force used is proportionate and necessary. In high-stress situations, I rely on my training and experience to apply the policy. For example, in a situation where a suspect is resisting arrest but is not posing a significant threat, I would use verbal commands or physical restraint, rather than resorting to lethal force. By adhering to the 'use of force' policy, I can perform my duties while respecting the rights and well-being of all individuals involved.

---

Describe a time when you had to deal with a situation that tested your integrity.

How to Answer:

Your answer should demonstrate your ability to adhere to moral and ethical principles, even when facing challenges. Describe the situation in detail, explaining the dilemma you faced, the options you considered, and the decision you made. Make sure to emphasize the importance of integrity in your role as a police officer, and how it influenced your actions in the situation you're describing.

Example:

During my time as a security officer, I once found a wallet containing a significant amount of money. The wallet didn't have any identification in it, so it would have been easy to take the money without anyone knowing. However, I knew that wasn't the right thing to do. I took the wallet to my supervisor and reported it as a lost item. A few days later, a man came to the security office looking for his lost wallet. He was relieved to find all his money still in it. I believe that maintaining my integrity in this situation was paramount, even though no one was watching me.

What steps would you take if you were first on the scene of a serious road accident?

How to Answer:

The interviewer wants to evaluate your ability to handle emergency situations, your knowledge of first-aid procedures, your ability to prioritize tasks, and your understanding of police protocol. Start by explaining the first thing you would do, then outline your subsequent steps, making sure to demonstrate your knowledge of police procedures, public safety, and first-aid. Show your ability to remain calm under pressure, and to think logically and quickly.

Example:

First, I would ensure my own safety by parking my patrol car in a safe location, then I would activate my emergency lights to warn other road users. I would immediately report the accident to the dispatch center, providing them with all the necessary details, and request additional resources if needed. I would then approach the scene cautiously, assess the situation and check for any immediate dangers like fire or hazardous materials. My next priority would be to provide first aid to the injured, starting with the most seriously injured. Once backup arrives, I would move to managing traffic or crowd control, preserving the scene for investigation, and gathering witness statements.
